Whether you are new to grassroots advocacy, or are interested in strengthening your skills, this training is for you. It includes useful knowledge designed to help you ensure that policy makers in Albany, NY and in Washington, DC are responsive to issues that affect the profession of psychology and the psychological needs of their constituents.

Every year there are ongoing battles with insurance regulations, access to care, competition among health care professions, scope of practice issues and specific bills introduced. All of these issues ultimately affect patients and quality of psychological care. Addressing these issues to gain successful outcomes requires strategy, patience and a plan.

Your commitment and involvement to grassroots advocacy will help ensure that political interest and attention to psychological issues will not wane. It will also make certain that programs and vital laws that are in place, like Timothy's Law, are adequately funded and continue to be available for those in need for years to come.

This program is designed for those working or training in the mental health professions.
